Sweet Briar College
Sweet Briar, Virginia 24595

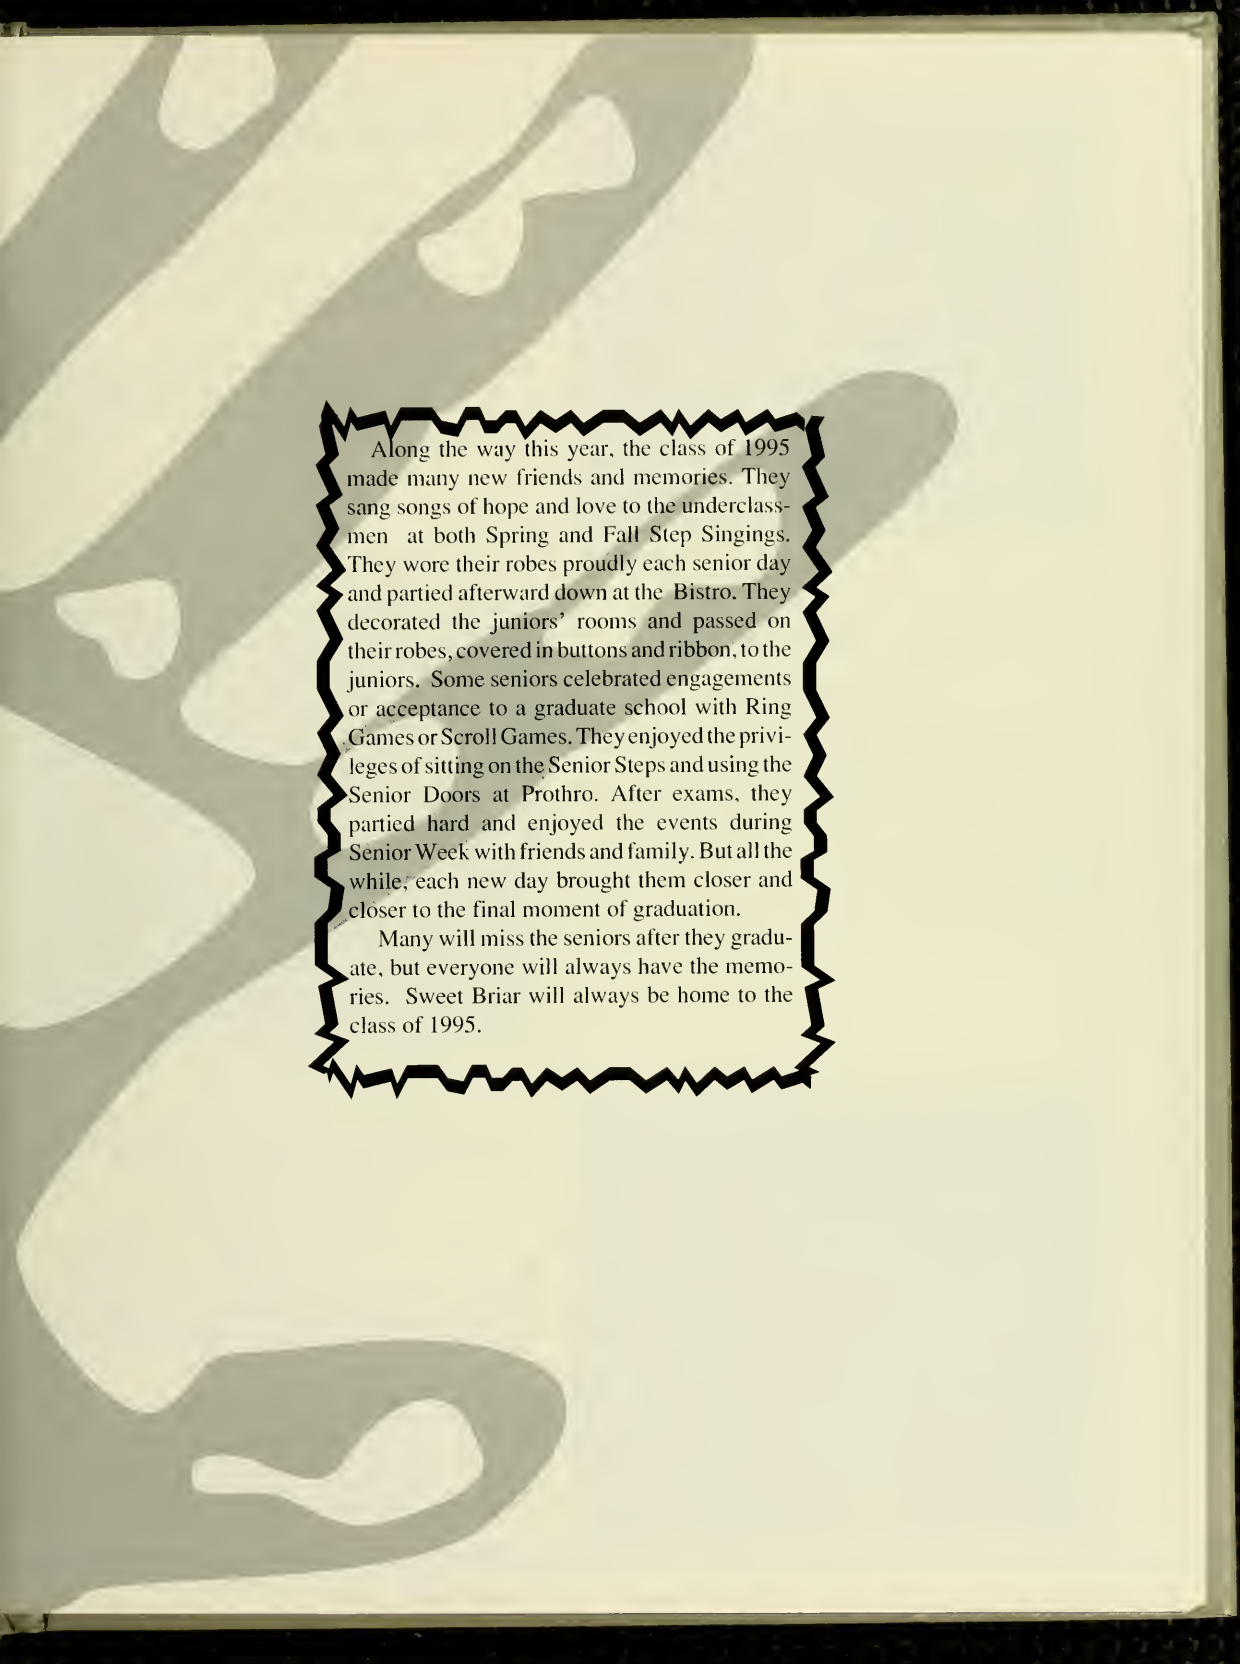

SENIORS

Along the way this year, the class of 1995 made many new friends and memories. They sang songs of hope and love to the underclassmen at both Spring and Fall Step Singings. They wore their robes proudly each senior day and partied afterward down at the Bistro. They decorated the juniors' rooms and passed on their robes, covered in buttons and ribbon, to the juniors. Some seniors celebrated engagements or acceptance to a graduate school with Ring Games or Scroll Games. They enjoyed the privileges of sitting on the Senior Steps and using the Senior Doors at Prothro. After exams, they partied hard and enjoyed the events during Senior Week with friends and family. But all the while, each new day brought them closer and closer to the final moment of graduation.

Many will miss the seniors after they graduate, but everyone will always have the memories. Sweet Briar will always be home to the class of 1995.

Men are born soft and supple;
 dead, they are stiff and hard.
 Plants are born tender and pliant;
 dead, they are brittle and dry.
 Thus whoever is stiff and inflexible is a disciple of death.
 Whoever is soft and yielding is a disciple of life.

The hard and stiff will be broken.
 The soft and supple will prevail.

These Are The Days.....

JUNIORS

Two years ago, the class of 1996 entered Sweet Briar as young women who were ready to take on the world. Two years later as juniors, the class of 1996 is still ready to take on the world. This year though, the class of 1996 has spent the year working on their majors and enjoying the traditions of Sweet Briar as upperclassmen at last.

As juniors, the class of 1996 was able to sit on the junior bench without fear of having to scrub it. The Junior Bum Chum's played the game with the sophomore Q.V.'s trying to make this miserable. In March, the juniors danced on tables, sang, laughed and cried at Junior Banquet. The juniors finally received the traditional symbol of the approaching senior year, the class ring. After banquet, the juniors received their robes and celebrated in their rooms with friends.

The class of 1996 has made many memories and friends. Through their schoolwork and the traditions, they have laughed and cried.

"Oh What A Night!"

"Oh, what a night! 3-2-1!" screamed juniors at this year's Junior Banquet. At the count of one, the juniors put on their class rings for the first time. The past two years of fundraising, planning and envying the past juniors had culminated in one night of excitement, happiness, surprises and laughter.

Junior Banquet, an old tradition of Sweet Briar, was held on Friday, March 10 at the Wailes Student Center. The evening began at 5 p.m. with a piano-serenaded hors d'oeuvres reception in the Wailes' lobby.

Then, an hour later, at 6 pm, the caterers threw open the banquet room and the dining room. The theme of this year's Junior Banquet was "Oh, What a Night!" and the dining room for the banquet, the Boxwood room, was decorated according to this theme.

Seated at the head table was the toastmistresses and the two guests for the banquet, Robert Barlow, Dean of Student Affairs and Cynthia Patterson, Dean of Academic Advising. During the banquet, the junior class awarded each guest a special gift. Dean Barlow received a watch and Dean Patterson, since she came to SBC the same year the junior class did, received her class ring with its purple center.

Then, the ode readings began. Each toastmistress read several odes. Each junior who attended Junior Banquet had an ode written for her by her friends. Some odes were funny while others were charming. Junior Phuong Tran said her ode was hilarious. Tracy Walters, a junior, said, "The ode was very nice and touching."

After the last ode was read, the members of the head table passed out the boxes which contained the juniors' rings along with a favor from the banquet. Once every junior had their box in front of them, the juniors tore open their boxes and found their ring inside. They also found a sterling pewter shot glass that was engraved with "Junior Banquet 1995" on it that was the favor. As the song that gave the banquet its name, "Oh, What a Night!" by the Four Seasons was playing in the background, Juniors danced on the tables or sang heartily along with the song, impatient to get to put on their rings. As the song ended, the juniors began to countdown from 3 to 1. As the juniors said "1", the juniors put their class rings on their fingers.

"Getting the rings was truly a frightening experience since it was a symbol of us becoming seniors and having to go out into the real world," said juniors Bridget Bayliss and Abby Phillips.

People hugged and laughed, and then got ready for the next part of the night—going back to their rooms and discovering which senior was giving each of them her robe. They also would discover that the senior had decorated their rooms according to a theme.

Sarah Scales and Wendy Long decorated Leah Jorgensen's and Meg Magistro's room according to the theme of "Viva Italia" since Magistro was abroad in Italy last semester and also because Jorgensen is half-Italian while Magistro is full Italian.

"I was really excited about the ring," said junior Leah Jorgensen. "I was really pleased with the banquet itself. The dinner was great. I thought it was cute how people dressed up, not to spite the class, but to have fun," she said. Jorgensen had dressed up with several other juniors as monks, nuns or priests while Lisa Aumiller was dressed as the devil. Jorgensen, herself was dressed as a priest. "I was with the religious order," she said, laughing. She also said, "The one thing I will not forget is the random group of girls who streaked the quad."

Sarah Dennis summed everything up by saying, "If Junior Banquet was that great, I can not wait to see Senior Week."

Decorated to the theme of "Hang'in at the Playground," Laura Lechler, Lee Foley, Nathalie Brown, and Mary Copeland's quad made quite the transformation.

After the decorations were done, Jen Beck's room resembled a chicken coop rather than a dorm room

Gathering together for a picture this table of Juniors enjoy the night before they receive their rings.

Ode To My Friend

Well look at us all
We've come so far.
The years come to rob us
From today as we are.
Yesterday is now a memory
we'll hold on to in our hearts.
While the end of the road's nearing,
we are reluctant to part.
I thank you for the laughter,
I've loved you through the tears.
We'll all return here later to rekindle these magical years.
Promise to always hold fast
to each other, to the end;
And always remember Sweet Brair,
The homage where I met you, my friend.
May many blessings be with you, with warm thoughts hold tight.
Class of '96, it's time to celebrate....
OH WHAT A NIGHT!!!!!!

Finally an upperclassman!

The past junior year has been a school year filled with memories. As juniors, we got our rings, robes and our rooms decorated. We declared our majors. We danced on tables at junior banquet. We sat on the junior bench finally without having to worry about scrubbing it. We became upperclassmen. Two years ago, we were the young freshmen, the babies on campus. Now we were about to become the seniors on campus, about to enter the world of graduate school or the professional work place.

Junior Banquet

Many juniors were divided between the excitement of being a junior and an upperclassmen and the apprehension of graduating next year.

Junior Bench

"Basically, I thought my junior year was a preparation," said Kerri Davis. "It was a major transition and my junior year signified that we are upperclassmen and approaching the end of the road," she said

class rings

Junior Susie Gross agreed that the academics got harder. "I thought it was a lot of schoolwork but it was a lot of fun," she said. Gross said that she liked the way how all of her major classes came together. "I am excited about being a senior," she said.

Tappings

"Junior year has been good," said Marion Johnson. "The Junior Banquet was the best part of it."

So with a bit of apprehension but also with a lot of excitement, the class of 1996 was ready to become seniors.

Gathering together during their tapping into Chung Mungs, Juniors Sarah Dennis, Marie Bandy, Christy Cardon, Tracey Walters, and Sarah Reidy started off the beginning of their junior year by being selected to participate in the group.

Getting ready to go out for Halloween, Kerri Davis, Laura Lechler, Natalie Brown, Mary Copeland, and Lee Foley are ready to hit the fraternity parties at Hampden-Sydney.

THE JUNIOR BENCH IS OURS! DON'T TOUCH IT!

As freshmen and sophomores, we have scrubbed, washed, and polished it. As juniors, the junior bench was ours. The curved, green-painted bench is a symbol each year of juniors becoming upperclassmen and gaining the privileges of being upperclassmen. The bench, which is located in the corner of the quad next to Randolph, is a long standing tradition at Sweet Briar. Only juniors are allowed to sit on or even touch the bench. An underclassman may sit upon or touch the bench only if a junior invites her to do so. If an underclassman does so without a junior's invitation and she is caught doing so, then she must scrub the bench with her toothbrush. This year two underclassmen had to scrub the bench.

Mary Margaret Dixon said that she thought it was kind of funny because the first two years, the excitement builds of being able to touch the bench but that she has only found herself sitting on it all of maybe five times.

Leah Jorgenson said of the junior bench, "It makes you realize that you are an upperclassman and it gives you extra privileges."

Jennifer Beck said that the junior bench was "Something that I waited a long time for because it is symbolic of the companionship that you have with your class. It lets people know that you are an upperclassman and gives upperclassmen something to look forward to." Beck also said that as a junior, "it was nice how you can share the privilege of sitting on the bench with underclassmen by inviting them to sit on it with you."

The junior bench celebrates the tradition of becoming an upperclassman and that graduation is not too far in off in the future. Both members of the junior class and the other classes realize the significance in its meaning and respect those who have gained the right to sit on it.

SOPHOMORES

The Class of 1997 returned to Sweet Briar in early September with an agenda to get things done. The Q.V.'s were picked and both the drops and the Bum runs began. We became Secret Sophomores to the Seniors and found ways to avoid being found out. The Sophomores had the responsibility to put on Fall Formal. Many Sophomores participated in weekly meetings to make sure it went over well, and it did. "Midnight Masquerade" was appreciated by the entire campus and the Sophomores were praised for a job well done. In early March we declared our majors and began to worry about what we wanted to do with our lives. Many Sophomores applied to go abroad for the following year as Juniors and received acceptance letters. The Sophomores proved that they could write Step-Singing songs and sing them too. As Sophomores the class showed their unity and their commitment to Sweet Briar.

The Game

The longest traditon here at Sweet Briar is the Q.V. and Bum Chum game, and it involves members from the sophomore, the junior, and the senior classes. This year the game began on September 7, 1994 and ended with Step-Singing when the Q.V.'s were revealed and recognized.

Eleven sophomores were elected in the spring of their freshman year by their classmates to be Q.V.'s. They were not told until they got back on campus in the fall that they had been chosen. They tried all year to keep themselves a secret from their classmates and especially for the Bums Chums. The ten Bum Chums from the junior class were chosen in the spring of their sophomore year by the previous years Bums. Part of the traditon is that Bum Chums are always tapped on the night of Spring Step-Singing their sophomore year. The main purpose of the game besides having fun is to promote class unity and spirit within the sophomore class. The sophomore year is often the hardest and the most stressful year in college. The game is suppose to take away from that by providing the sophomores with opportunities to meet people in their class who they do did not know.

Times that this bonding occurs is when the Bums take a group of sophomores out on a run. A Bum run usually includes sophomores who are not best friends, but they all come back from the run with new friends and with all sorts of edible stuff in their hair. They often leave a nasty odor in the bathroom after they finish showering and cleaning up. The Sweet Briar community knew the next day which sophomores went on the run the night before because they are dressed in red from head to toe. While the Bums promote unity with their runs, the Q.V.'s promote class sprit with their drops. Part of being a Q.V. involves doing a drop. A drop means leaving a little gift for every member of the sophomore class, every Q.V. mom and grandmom, and every Bum Chum and Bum Chum mom. It was always fun to see what the Bum drop was because they got bad drops like rotten eggs and teddy bears with out heads. Everyone else got good drops like cups and wooden teddy bears. Each drop was different which added to the fun of the game.

The Q.V. and Bum Chum game was something for the freshmen to be excited about participating in the following year and for the current Q.V.'s and Bum Chums to continue enjoying the rest of their time at Sweet Briar.

After Spring Step-Singing Bum Chum Alison Wallis congratulated Q.V.'s Lucinda Polley and Cory Meier on a game well played.

Q.V. Grandmom Lee Roman poses with her baby Q.V. Elizabeth Hunter during tapping on the night of September 7, 1994.

Since second floor Reid provoked a run by having the residents wear green, the three Bum Chums that were taunted decided to strike back. Bum Chum Julie Hildebrand did this by leaving her mark on the legs of one of the participants.

A Midnight Masquerade

On the night of October 29, 1994, Prothro Commons was transformed into a magical place. Fall Formal is put on each year in the fall by the Sophomore Class. The event is a fund raiser with the purpose of making a large profit for the class. The formal provides an opportunity for the members of the Sophomore Class to become very involved because it takes a lot of work to put on a big event and make it successful. Many members of the class helped out by being on a committee for things such as designing the T-shirt and cup, selling the tickets at meals, and choosing what food to have as snacks for those who were to attend.

The planning began during spring of 1994 when the class elected Lucinda Polley as Chairwoman. The different committees were formed soon afterwards to get as much done as possible before the summer vacation started.

One of the first decisions to be made was about the band. Liquid Pleasure was chosen, and everyone at the formal enjoyed having them play. The band played songs that students and dates wanted as well as their own mix and got everyone in Prothro up on their feet and dancing. On the day of the formal, members of the sophomore class and some of their dates spent all afternoon decorating. The basement of Meta Glass served as the decoration storage place. It was covered with tones of purple and silver balloons, metallic stars, and various other decorations.

The theme of the dance was Midnite Masquerade. It was an appropriate theme with Halloween being two days later. There were even some people who came dressed up in costumes which added some humor and fun to the evening.

In the end, all of the hard work and stress paid off. The formal was a great success, and all night long, people seemed to be having a fun and memorable time.

Singing with the keyboardist, Molly Cameron and Lucinda Polley have a great time up on stage

Taking a moment to take a picture, Amy Everett and Julia Ingelido spend part of the night at a party that was held on second floor Glass.

Having a great time at the formal, Kate Hall and her date Ben dance to the music of Liquid Pleasure.

FRESHMEN

As arriving Freshmen, the opportunities of college life seemed endless. The first week was filled with new friends, orientation classes, the handbook test, and most of all lasting impressions. As the year moved on there seemed to be many all-nighters and countless hours of laughter. As we left for home for Winter Break, we said good-bye to our Sweet Briar Family and prepared ourselves to deal with parents and friendships of the past. Upon returning for J-term, we found time to play in the snow, road-trips, and strengthen friendships. With the arrival of Spring Term, we realized that the year soon be over and that our first year at Sweet Briar College was coming to a close. As Freshmen we saw the Faculty Show, went to dell parties participated in the, Hitching Post and Rock Fight, and the Freshmen Show. From fall Step-Singing to spring, our class has shared many laughs and memories that will last forever.

A Night of Fun Freshman Show

On Tuesday, April 18, at 9p.m., the Bistro began to fill with people eagerly anticipating the Freshman Show. When the first year students took the stage, the audience was treated to Susan Holman, Anne Myre McClintock, and Jennn Hogan sing an ode to Predient Hill, a group giving their impression of the Brady Bunch, and the popular skit, "You might be a Suzie Sweet Briar if..." by Kelsey Larus and Megan Burkart.

The Freshman Show is an annual event performed for the Aints and Asses who, according to their description in the Handbook, are "masters of comedy". They usually sit in the front few rows of the audience and critique the first-year performances by way of water guns. The first-years, in turn, are responsible for keeping the Aints and Asses supplied with beer and cigarettes to bring the freshman class closer not only to each other but also closer to the upper classes aswell.

The writing and rehearsal of the acts this year was left to the individual performing groups. The show was seen in its entirety only on the night of the event. A few of the performers said they wished a larger portion of the first-year class had gotten involved.

"It was fun," said Susan Holman, class of '98 "but I wish more people had participated."

Even if the participation rate seemed low to some, others maintain that the Freshman Show this year served its purpose in providing an entertaining evening -Evah Pottmeyer '98

Hitching Post Fight

As the freshman class barged out of the Grammer parlor singing the newly learned chant of "Holla, holla" and carrying everything from cups to buckets, they were ready to take on the sophomore class. We freshman didn't know what to expect. We had been told it was a fun experience and a rich tradition that had lasted year after year. So as we round the corner our hitching post we were ready for the fight of our lives.

We found that the true object of this game was to see how many sophomores we could turn green. And we won!! But just how did we do it? We took the advice given to us and had someone stand in our trash can full of paint. This fearless someone was Serena Putegnat. However she didn't last long after one swift tackle was made by sophomore Stacy McKimm. Serena went down but managed to keep our bucket full of paint. Stacy's comment was, "the freshmen put up a good fight, but we know who really should have won." After that Serena was out for the rest of the night (and the rest of the week) with a sprained ankle. While all this was going on the sophomores were turning green with envy because we had won the fight. The class of 1998 prevailed. As Dawn Everette stated, "It was a fun and a great way to promote class spirit." That night we did make new friends, not just within our own class but with the class of 1997 as well. They put up a good fight and had us on our toes. "It was definitely a crazy night with a bunch of rowdy girls" Christine Creamer mentioned as she carried Serena to Meta Glass on her back. Definitely a night to remember.

Junior Class President Lee Foley and officers instructed the two teams about the rules of the game

Gathering outside of Grammer, these first-year students go over their strategies for the fight.

Gathering at the Hitching Post, the sophomores were ready take on the first-years and battle it to the end.

Gathering together before the scrubbing, members of third floor Glass decided that it would be a great bonding experience if their entire floor had to scrub.

Hugging senior Tina Carlton after her scrubbing, freshman Alyssa Spisso had a great time and even had Tina sign her toothbrush after the event was over.

scrubbing those doors

There are many traditions which many students look forward to participating in yet there are others students try their best to avoid. One of the most dreaded traditions at Sweet Briar is scrubbing. This tradition was one that every student on campus is made aware of so that they do not fall victim to the juniors or seniors.

Toothpaste

Entering students are warned from day one to steer clear of the three sacred rite-of-passage objects: the Senior Stairs, Senior Doors, and the Junior Bench. If an underclassman is caught touching one of these objects the class it belongs to usually finds out and goes after the trespasser. On a night selected by either the juniors or seniors the student who must scrub is escorted by the class which claims the object to scrub it.

In Your Eyes

A Scrubmistress is appointed by the class which is hosting the scrub for emotional support and to explain what is going to occur.

Could Never Be

Once arriving to the scrub site the student usually performs a requested song such as "R-E-S-P-E-C-T" and the assumes the position which is kneeling before the stairs, doors, or bench with toothbrush in hand. The student is given some toothpaste which is conveniently squirted on her face, drenched with soapy water, and told to scrub.

So Much

While scrubbing the student is squirted with a variety of things including shampoo, shaving cream, bath gel, and more toothpaste. After the scrub mistress thinks the student has scrubbed long enough to learn her lesson she is told to stop and "Holla, Holla" is sung to the scrubber for participating in the tradition and for being such a great sport. This experience may sound humiliating, but Amy Sroupe, '98 thought otherwise. She explained, "I was really dreading the scrubbing, but actually had a lot of fun. It wasn't as bad as I had expected." Although there is a lot of hype which makes scrubbing out to be an awful tradition, those who have participated in the scrubbing usually agree that it was a lot of fun and a great experience.

FUN!

Did You Feel Trapped?

In the middle of January when there are no other schools in session yet and the weather is hovering around thirty-two degrees, not only will you find students on campus but they'll be having fun too. The J-term experience for first-year students is one that allows them to get to know each other better and share the delightful experience of a Virginia winter. Since all first-year students are required to take a J-term class, the majority of them are on campus during the month. It is during this month that the freshmen take at least one three credit course. This allows these students to concentrate on an area of interest and learn more about their class too.

Sweet Briar

It's during this month which many experience their first Virginia winter, which may or may not be what they expected. The few but good snow storms which left the dell coated white served as the main entertainment for many. The United States Naval Academy Choir also came to serenade those on campus during late January. This provided an additional event which the campus enjoyed. Many of the first-year students ventured on ski trips to Wintergreen and Snowshoe during the January term which served as a stress relief from their concentrated studies.

In January

The month is one which is filled with both fun and hard work by not only the first-year class but all of those who return for the month. The freshmen bonded not only with each other, but with the upperclass students which returned as well. The J-term experience was one which helped the Class of '98 not only learn more about SBC, but the people who make up SBC as well.

Eating the freshly fallen snow, Jessica Brandrup and Sara Huelett play in the dell one night during the month of January.

Sledding in the dell during a night snowstorm, Kelsey Larus, Joelle Jackson, Candi McMillian, Rush Harris, Caroline Johnston, and Isabel Jean-Pierre have fun as they prepared to plummet down the hill.

Playing on a swingset somewhere between Sweet Briar and Hampden-Sydney, these freshmen take a break from the drive to enjoy the snow.

FACULTY

The faculty here at Sweet Briar this year in Princeton Review's recent 1995 edition of the Best 306 Colleges, Sweet Briar ranked third in the category of "Professors Bring Material to Life" and fourth in the category of "Professors Make Themselves Accessible". And Sweet Briar students agree that does in fact make the material covered in class interesting and that they are very accessible as well.

The professors and faculty here at Sweet Briar do care about the students and their work. Students often relate how when they have been stuck on homework or a paper in the evening that they have been able to call their professors at home and ask them for help.

The past year here at Sweet Briar has been a challenging year academically for most students but with the help and guidance of the faculty, students here at Sweet Briar once again have completed another successful year.

Faculty Show '94

A side of the Faculty that we NEVER thought we see !

It only happens once every four years. Sweet Briar students flock to Babcock Auditorium to see their professors let down their guard and let all hang out in the SBC Faculty Show. November 4, 1994 was one of those times. The professors and staff worked together to produce a wonderfully entertaining show for their students. A large and energetic audience turned out to watch as the usually dignified professors dressed up (or down), danced their way through SBC Supergold, and performed one parody after another to work the crowd into a whistling, screaming frenzy of waving arms and smiling faces.

It all began with a group of seniors getting up on stage to kick off the fun by dancing to the preshow music. Then came "Forrest Gump" to introduce the show. "Life is like the Faculty Show. You never know what you're gonna get!" Finally, the faculty kicked the show into high gear with a string of skits and songs, including a parody of the O.J. Simpson chase (popular campus dog Cinnamon was the fugitive). President Hill and dance instructor Mark Macgruder preformed their adaptation of "The Bodyguard," complete with President Hill lip-synching to that ever-popular tune "I Will Always Love You."

Math Professor Steve Wassell followed with his unique renditions of "Sugar Mountain" by Neil Young and "Factory Girl" by the Rolling Stones, shengting the words to suit his experience as a "young, single male professor at Sweet Briar." His performance was followed by the "3 Non-Students," who sang "What's Up?" by 4 Non-blondes. Then, Chaplain Lehman did a skit about Rumor control at SBC, donning a black wig and red knee-high stocking to create her obnoxiously funny character.

The second half of the show was just as entertaining as the first, with skits such as "The Last Crusade," "Margaritaville," and the infamous "Ladies, Night Out," which lamented the familiar dilemma of what to do when there is nowhere to go. The highlight of the second half, however, was the three male professors in drag. They paraded around stage in miniskirts, stuffed bras, and high heels showing lots of leg and getting lots of laughs for their occasionally racy antics.

Students had plenty to say about the show. "It was hilarious," said Elizabeth Snider. "I though it was really funny," Said Erika Sund. "The first half was great. It was a lot more liberal or open than I thought it would be, but I loved it. I laughed so hard my face hurt!" "I haven't laughed that hard for a long time," agreed Cyntia Bumgardner '98. "It was nice to see our professors in a new light."

The consensus is that the 1994 SBC Faculty Show was a huge success. Perhaps the best part about it is that the proceeds of the ticket sales went to Habitat for Humanity. It also gave all of the students an opportunity to see their professors as real people. As Caroline Johnston '98 said, "It helped me realize just how special Sweet Briar is."

Performing their version of a kick-line, Sweet Briar students and Archie entertain the audience before the start of the show.

Singing along with other faculty members Professor Shae concentrates on chanting the lyrics to the opening number of the show.

The Other Side

Donning her feathered and flowered bonnet, Carter Hopkins enjoyed herself during the opening number where she and other faculty members sang about what it was like to work and be a member of the staff at Sweet Briar.

Yelling at Professor Mark Magruder during the "Bodyguard" skit, President Barbara Hill lets him and others know who is still boss on the SBC campus.

Making sure that everyone got in to see the show, an unidentified faculty member posed as a bouncer to ensure that there was a full house.

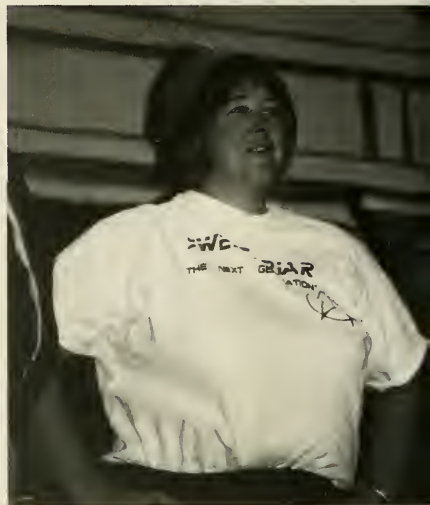

A Side Unseen

We didn't know that Wassel could play the guitar, Connors could sing, or that any of them could be funny!

Singing about the trials and tribulations of being a young male teacher at a women's college, Professor Wassel stunned many of the student body by his musical talent.

Decked out in one of the Physical Education designed t-shirts, Coach Crispen took her stance on the stage with the other SBC professors.

Playing the acoustic guitar, Tom Connors and his back-up singers sang the Jimmy Buffet song of Margaritaville which brought back many memories of Junior Banquet back for the Class of '95.

Draped in his bright orange cape, Professor Heusti belts out the tune of the Faculty Anthem during the opening number of the show.

A thirty second commercial break allowed the Energizer Bunny to make a guest appearance and make sure that Professor Mark Magruder had the appropriate type of battery to make it through the night.

Almost Two Decades of Dedication

"I really and truly enjoy working with students. Some people put on a front, but it's real for me. It's there."

As Dean Barlow uttered these words, the expression on his face changed from upbeat to melancholy, and his sadness at leaving Sweet Briar became apparent.

Carter Hopkins, who has worked with Dean Barlow in Student Affairs since he first arrived in 1977, stated, "I don't think that when Dean Barlow moved here eighteen years ago, he had any idea of how many daughters he'd end up having. For someone who started with two boys, he now has hundreds of girls!"

After serving the College for eighteen years, Dean of Student Affairs Robert Barlow retired in June of '95.

"I'm proud that I developed student affairs to the high professional level it's at now," he said. "We offer more services and help students with goals. You can match us against any other student affairs department, and the quality of our service becomes apparent."

Dean Barlow did indeed change the face of student affairs. "The resident advisor's are all Bob's ideas," said Carter Hopkins. "The new situation in which the house president and resident advisor positions are combined is one of his brain children."

In addition to residential changes, Dean Barlow has played an active role in developing and coordinating programs and initiatives here at Sweet Briar.

Eighteen years ago, we had a less diverse student body in all aspects: racial, socio-economic, geographic, family background," he said. Along with helping to diversify the student body, he has coordinated volunteer services on campus and is proud that Sweet Briar "has not compromised the basic values of liberal arts. We've added the management certificate and environmental courses, kept the language requirement, and are adding journalism and public speaking next year."

"The thing that I really enjoyed watching him do was help the student government during the years when the visitation hours were being formulated. He was the most important force for both the students and the institution," said Hopkins.

Even though Dean Barlow has displayed a strong interest and involvement in formulating college policy, most members of the Sweet Briar community will remember him for his character and devotion.

"It amazes me that as much as I like to be involved," said Hopkins, "it's rare when I go to an event and he isn't there. That takes a lot of energy and a lot of planning." Barlow admitted, "I've gotten older-I can't keep up as well. I'm proud of what students do and want to be supportive. Those things are really important for students, and it's important for me to be there as well."

So, as his last year came to a close, the Sweet Briar Community bid Dean Robert H. Barlow a fond farewell, as he moved in search of "new and different challenges."

Goodbye to a great advisor and friend

When I came to Sweet Briar, I knew one thing was for sure, I wanted to be the editor of the yearbook. I had virtually no idea if I would be capable of obtaining the position since I was only a freshman, but I figured that it was worth a shot. I first met Dean Barlow in my interview and at the time I was in awe that I had actually met the Dean of Student Affairs in a small group interview. That was enough to excite me, just knowing an administrator was a big deal in my mind. After being selected as the editor I was told by my predecessor that Dean Barlow was a great advisor but I was not obligated to keep him as mine. I figured that if he had done a good job it was well worth asking him to be mine as well. Thank goodness I did! Dean Barlow was a great yearbook advisor because even though I was only a freshman, he let me run the book and still stood by my side when I needed help or asked favor upon favor. Few people realize that he spent the summer of '94 running around SBC looking for sports pictures for me. Without that type of dedication to not only the yearbook, but to the students as well, Sweet Briar probably would have fallen behind in the production of the Briar Patch once again. Dean Barlow was great for advice on how to deal with problems with my staff and the production of the book (the few that there were). He was always supportive and reassuring when I needed it most, which is what a great advisor does. The countless phone calls and discussions about the vision that I had for the book never fell on deaf ears. For those of you who never had Dean Barlow as a club or organization leader, I'm sorry. He was one of the best. Dean Barlow, thanks so much for your patience and dedication to the publication. Most of all, thanks for never doubting me and always letting me know what a great job I was doing, even if I didn't feel like it. Being the yearbook editor can be a very frustrating job, but with an advisor like Dean Barlow, it was a whole lot easier. Thanks again. - Sarah

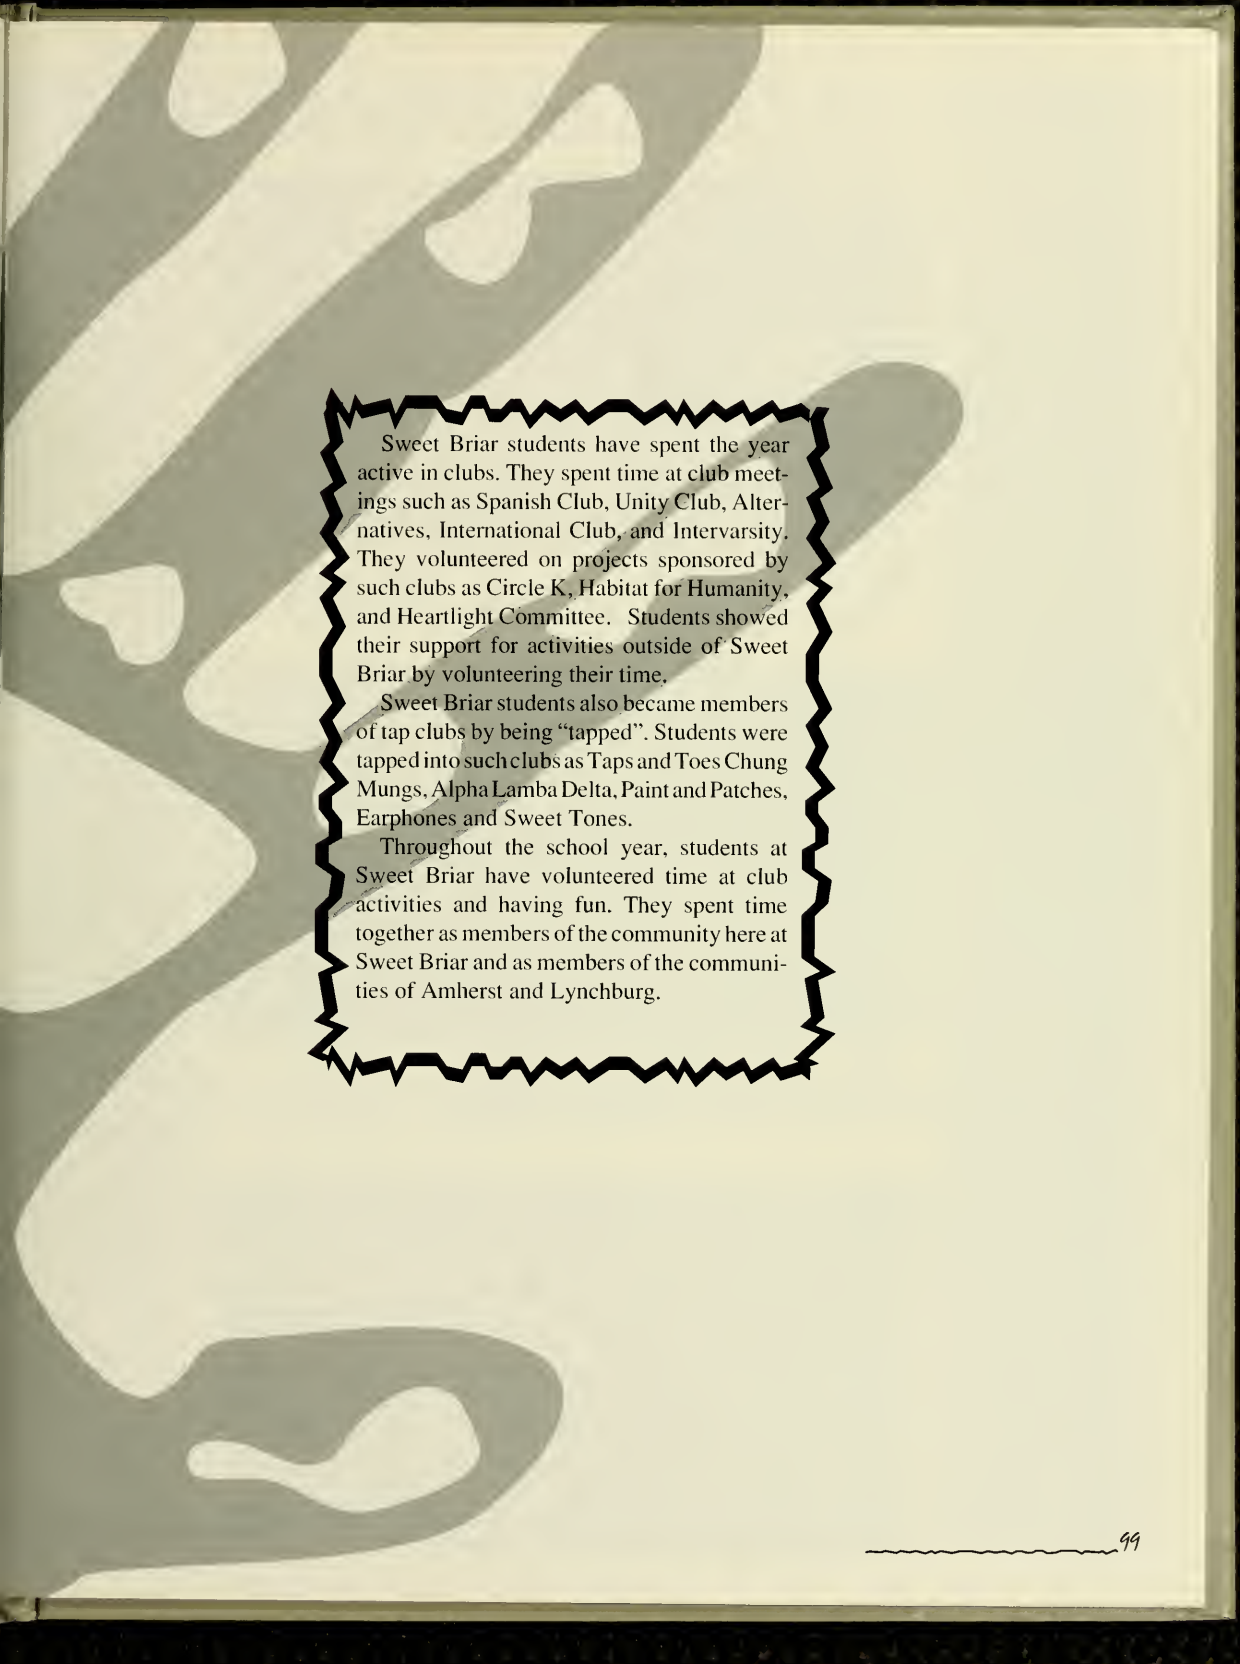

A Last Minute Loss

Shortly before this book was to go to print, I found out that Carter Hopkins was leaving Sweet Briar. As editor, I would have liked to have had an article on her as well, but unfortunately due to printing deadlines I was unable to gather the information on Carter's career at Sweet Briar. I think that I speak for all of the the students that when I say that we will truly miss her and all of her energy that she brought not only into Career Planning, but to the campus as well. She helped many of us who were hunting for just the right job or internship and never would let us give up when the searching got frustrating and monotonous. For all of us who you did help find jobs and internships for, thank you. Good luck at Elon and we'll think of you as we hunt through the job guides. Take care and thanks again. - Sarah

Sweet Briar students have spent the year active in clubs. They spent time at club meetings such as Spanish Club, Unity Club, Alternatives, International Club, and Intervarsity. They volunteered on projects sponsored by such clubs as Circle K, Habitat for Humanity, and Heartlight Committee. Students showed their support for activities outside of Sweet Briar by volunteering their time.

Sweet Briar students also became members of tap clubs by being "tapped". Students were tapped into such clubs as Taps and Toes Chung Mungs, Alpha Lambda Delta, Paint and Patches, Earphones and Sweet Tones.

Throughout the school year, students at Sweet Briar have volunteered time at club activities and having fun. They spent time together as members of the community here at Sweet Briar and as members of the communities of Amherst and Lynchburg.

IMPRESSIONS OF SWEET BRIAR

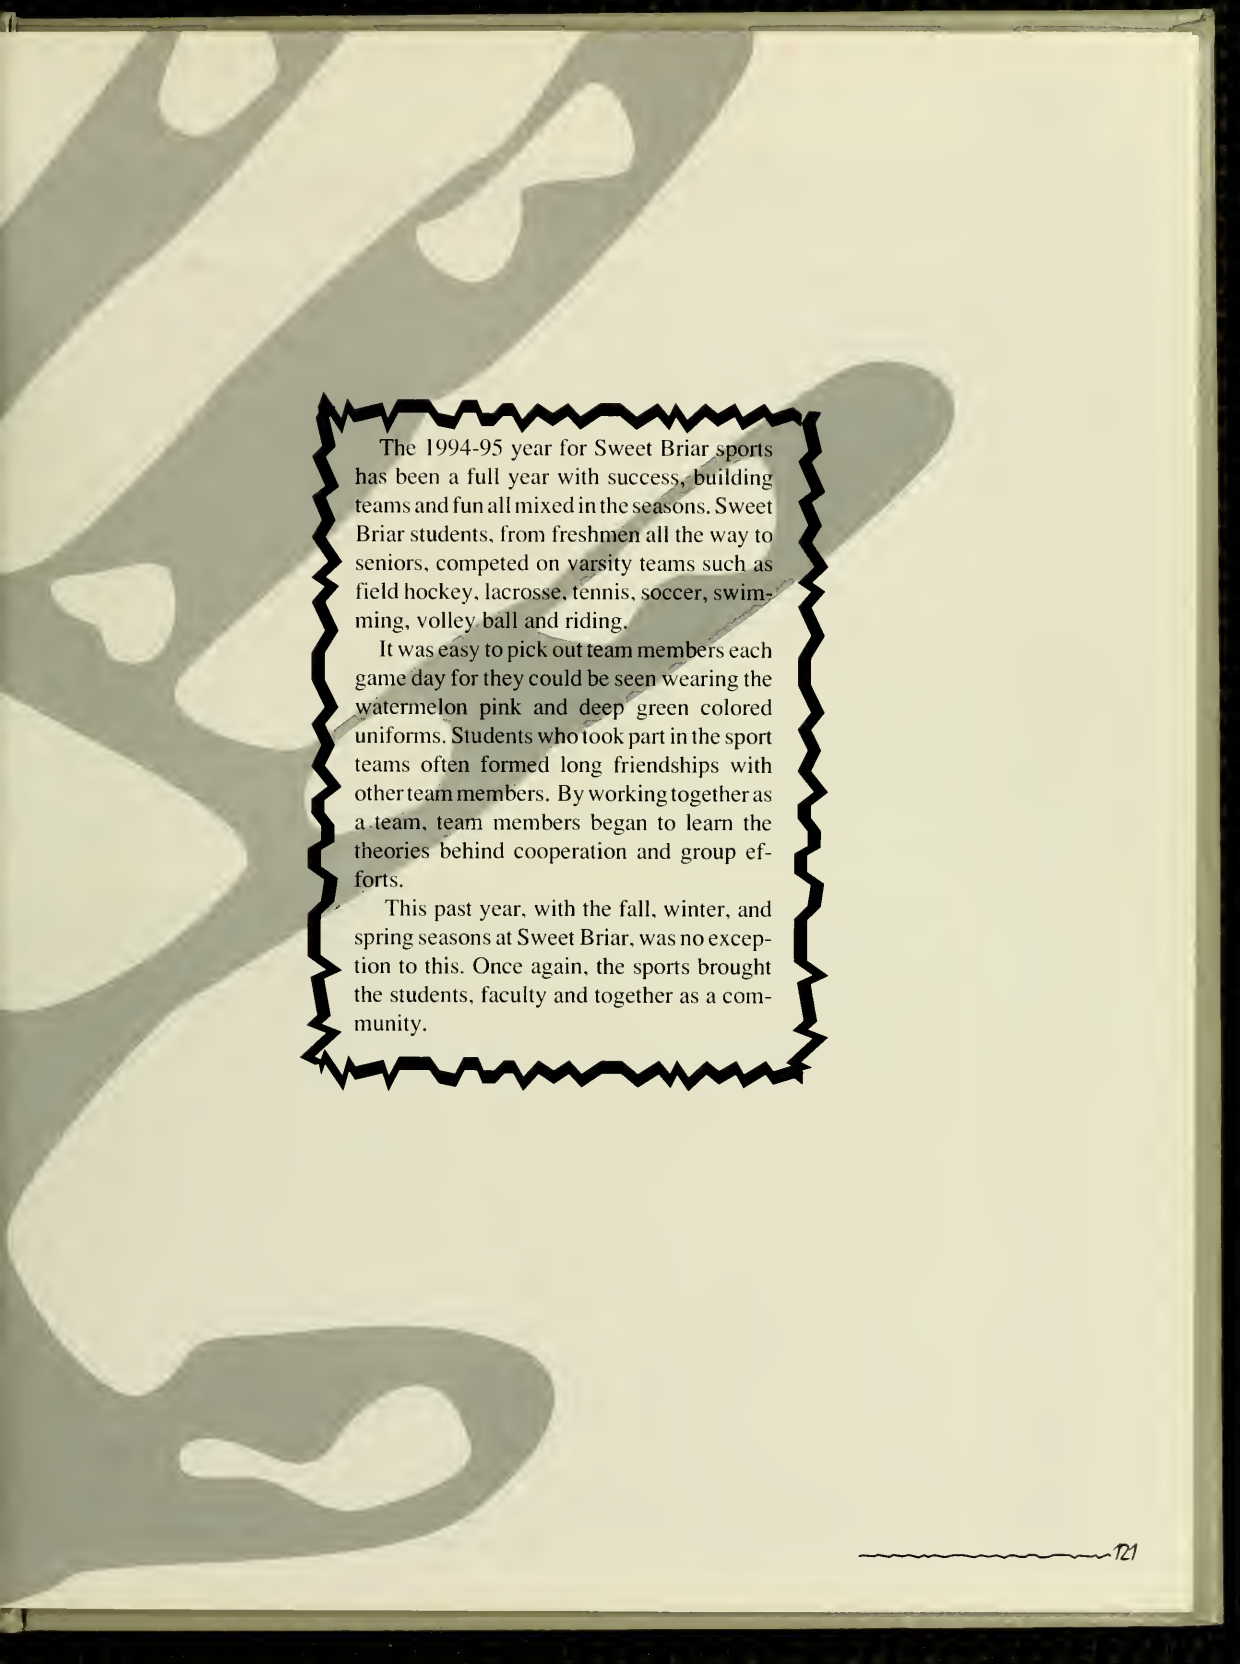

"In a community the scale of Sweet Briar, there is no opportunity to be anonymous, there is no place to hide from the expectation of participation and responsibility. I have seen students governing themselves, competing on the athletic fields, studying in the library, organizing activities of all sorts - and dancing. As a result of being at a women's college rather than a coeducational institution, I have seen young women who are likely to have a higher level of self-esteem, a higher graduation rate, a higher measure of academic achievement, particularly in traditionally male and prestigious disciplines such as the sciences, a higher rate of aspiration and accomplishment in their careers, a higher level (by a factor of 2:1) of participation in philanthropic activities." - Barbara Hill, President of Sweet Briar College

SPORTS

The 1994-95 year for Sweet Briar sports has been a full year with success, building teams and fun all mixed in the seasons. Sweet Briar students, from freshmen all the way to seniors, competed on varsity teams such as field hockey, lacrosse, tennis, soccer, swimming, volley ball and riding.

It was easy to pick out team members each game day for they could be seen wearing the watermelon pink and deep green colored uniforms. Students who took part in the sport teams often formed long friendships with other team members. By working together as a team, team members began to learn the theories behind cooperation and group efforts.

This past year, with the fall, winter, and spring seasons at Sweet Briar, was no exception to this. Once again, the sports brought the students, faculty and together as a community.

SCOOP IT UP SOCCER

The soccer team had a full season with a record of 5-7-2 and an ODAC record of 2-6. They placed seventh in the ODAC conference. Sophomores Molly Cameron and Stacey McKimm were named Outstanding Players. Cameron lead the team in goals scored and points while McKimm led in assists. Cameron scored five goals and three assists. Freshman Dana Woodbury scored five goals and four assists. Senior Kat Madden had four goals and served as co-captain with Eleanor Dickinson.

After a 0-2 loss to Ferrum, the Vixens came back to tie them 1-1 in overtime. Sweet Briar celebrated a victory against Trinity College a week later with a score of 2-0. In regular season, the team won against Randolph-Macon's Women's College, Belmont Abbey, Mary Baldwin, and Hollins. They lost to Washington & Lee, Lynchburg College, Guilford College and Randolph-Macon College. In the ODAC tournament, Sweet Briar lost to Virginia Wesleyan, 0-6. But, what most players emphasized this year was the fact that they had fun as a team.

The team had several freshman players. McKimm said, "They're thrown in with upperclassmen and it gives them an opportunity to make friends outside of OGL/WOW." The team, she also said, was a nice combination of former all-state players and those who had never played soccer before.

Editor's note: There is a simple explanation why this spread is different from the other sports pages. This spread was created at the beginning of the year because we were able to obtain the pictures from public relations. Over the course of the fall the staff sold ads to the businesses in the communities and to parents of seniors. The staff sold more ads than originally intended, and thus we had to limit the amount of spreads for the sports section. This was done because additional pages could not be added to the book and also because we could not be sure of obtaining enough pictures for a spread for each sport. Please accept my sincere apology. I was not trying to favor the soccer team in any way it just happened that there pictures were in before the change in design. Thank you for understanding. -Sarah Betz, editor

Progress of Womanhood

It's the end of the journey,
The end of my teens.
The tremblings are over,
And I've outgrown my jeans.
My body's filled out
With head to toe curves
And my mind becomes boggled
With "grown-up" world words.
The little girl smile
That once charmed my face
Is now petite laughing
With suaveness and grace.
My mind has grown also
And that burns my soul
Because I often remember
When trinkets were gold
And the shells from the sea
Were so lovely to me
And my world was encompassed
By the view from tree.

Shana-Tara Regon

There's not a morning I begin without a thousand questions running through my mind, that I don't try to find the reason and the logic in the world that God designed. The reason why a bird was given wings, if not to fly and praise the sky with every song it sings. What's right or wrong, where I belong within the scheme of things and why have eyes that see and arms that reach unless you're meant to know there's something more? If not to hunger for the meaning of it all, then tell me what a soul is for? Why have the wings unless you're meant to fly? And tell me please why have a mind if not to question why? And tell me where, where is it written what it is I'm meant to be, that I can't dare to have the chance to pick the fruit of every tree, or have my share of every sweet imagined possibility? Just tell me where, tell me where? If I were only meant to tend the nest, then why does my imagination sail across the mountains and the seas, beyond the make believe of any fairy tale? Why have the thirst if not to drink the wine? And what a waste to have a taste of things that can't be mine! And tell me where, where's it written, what it is I'm meant to be, that I can't dare to find the meanings in the mornings that I see, or have my share of every sweet imagined possibility? Just tell me where, where is it written? Tell me where, OR if it is written anywhere?

*Love, Love,
Mama Dad*

Dear Mary-Byrd, Holly E., and all of my senior friends,

Thanks so much for making this year a special one! So many of you contributed in so many different ways to make this year what it was. You all know who you are and thanks for everything!

Mary-Byrd - You were right when you said that sophomore year was usually the worst, as you know, it was pretty bad. Thank you for being such an awesome big sister. What would I have done without you? I'll always remember how you saved me from the Sigma Chi experience (by the way, we never made it to church!), random trips (grocery store, to get our nails done, etc.), dinners (Texas Steakhouse, Briar Patch), and the many memories that we will forever share (Founders' Day, Latern Bearing).

Holly E. - I am so glad that we got to be friends this year! Thanks for being such a great listener, between you and Byrd, there was always someone to listen. It was great being your Secret Sophomore because if you knew it was me, you never let on! You were also fun to buy things for! Never forget getting me drunk (on several occasions!) or me trying to find out what you liked by investigating your room! Thanks for everything!

To all of my senior friends - I'm sorry that there isn't more room to write something each of you, you know that if I could, I would. Thanks to all of you who helped me through the year and shared some of the special memories which were created during this past year. I hope that your last year at Sweet Briar was as special as my second. Oh, and Sarah Glenn, I owe you a platapus. Take care and good luck to you all.

With love,
Sarah

Letter from the editor -

The 500 copies of the 1995 Briar Patch were printed by Jostens-Hunter Publishing at the Winston-Salem facility. Our customer service representative was John Fletcher and our representative was Eddie Huff.

The cover, designed by Sarah Betz and artwork for the cover was created by Jeff Rhinehart at the Winston-Salem facility, is craftline custom embossed on smoke material, sand grain.

The 144 pages are printed on 80# enamel paper. The pages are printed by signature and the signatures are rounded, backed and Smythe sewn.

The book was produced on PageMaker 4.2, Page Maker 5.0, some graphics created with Freehand 4.0a

The Divider pages were designed by Jeff Rhinehart. They employ the Mistral font.

The Opening section of the book was designed by Sarah Betz and Tonya Grudier. It uses Pantone color black printed at 100% for the background and the four color printing process. The types used were Mistral and Times Roman.

The People section of the book was designed by Tonya Grudier and Jake Weiner. It was organized by Scarlett Swain, Sara Spangler, and Jake Weiner. The types used were Zapf Chancery and Times Roman. It was photographed by Larry Peters.

The Sports section was designed by Sarah Betz and Tonya Grudier. It was organized by Carolyn Leddy. The type used was Times Roman.

The Club section was designed by Sarah Betz. It was photographed by Angela Elliott and organized by Lucinda Polley and Courtney Hayes. The type used was Times Roman.

The Faculty section was designed by Sarah Betz. It was photographed by Angela Elliott and organized by Courtney Hayes and Lucinda Polley. The type used was Times Roman.

The Advertisement section was designed by Jake Weiner and Amanda Diamond. It was managed in association with Sarah Betz, Scarlett Swain, and Courtney Hayes.

All copy editing was done by Sarah Betz. All candid photography was done by Angela Elliott and members of the Sweet Briar community.

The Briar Patch staff would like to thank Dean Robert Barlow, Cindy Mays, Ute Sarton, Anne Grimm, Catherine Bost, Larry Peters (and Virginia!), President Barbara Hill, Eddie Huff, the faculty and administration of Sweet Briar for their continued support, and the parents, students, and businesses which contributed to the advertisement section of the book.

It seems like it was just a week or two ago that I finished last year's book, but it has been a year since then. When I decided to take on the yearbook for a second year, I knew that it would be a challenge since school isn't supposed to get easier as you progress through the ranks. As a sophomore I learned a lot. Not only about myself but about others. I actually thought of the theme "Lasting Impressions" during my first year at Sweet Briar, but I had no idea how large of an impact that one little phrase would have on me. I started thinking of things as impressions for a while - good, bad, lasting, etc. The everyday objects around campus became etched as impressions instead of the boring everyday things. It may sound odd, but this is how I learned about myself and others. I thought of them and their actions as impressions (did they leave a good one? will this be a person I remember? Etc.). By doing so, I learned more than I could imagine. I also realized that one is more likely to remember a picture of something than of the actual event, the mind is like a camera that takes pictures of the things or people that leave an impression on it. You see, we leave impressions on everyone and everything but it's up to us to make them "lasting."

I would like to personally thank my staff for all of the hard work and effort that went into making this book. I told them at the beginning of the year that I really wanted to see this book develop into an award winning book and with hard work it could be, but it was up to them. They proved to me that they wanted to achieve the same goal and showed me through their actions and dedication. Courtney Hayes, Angela Elliott, Carolyn Leddy, Jake Weiner, Tonya Grudier, Amanda Diamond, Scarlett Swain, Sara Spangler, Lucinda Polley, Anne Collins, Elisabeth McClung, Serena Putegnat, and Mary Friberg made up an excellent staff which spent many long hours putting together the book which is now before you. I'd also like to thank our representative, Eddie Huff for all of his hard work and dedication to the staff. Eddie also helped make it possible for me to do an internship over the January term at the Winston-Salem plant which I owe him a thanks for. Thanks for everything, especially your time, energy, and patience. Another big thanks goes out to Larry Peters and his assistant Virginia. They both were extremely committed to the production of the book by photographing the entire student body! Their time and patience helped contribute to the productions of the book. Thanks for your continued support and encouragement.

I'd like to thank the Class of '95 for all of their time and patience. I know it's hard to have someone change the yearbook after you're accustomed to it a certain way, but change isn't always that bad. If it was, this book would still be about two years behind. Thank you for compromising with me on having three senior pictures to a page and having everyone have their picture taken by Larry. I think that you'll agree, the senior section is beautiful. Mary-Byrd, Holly E., Sarah Glenn, and all of my other senior friends who heard me get frustrated over things about the yearbook, thanks for listening.

Last but not least, thank you to the Publications Committee for giving me the opportunity to create this yearbook again. I'm pleased to say that I will be back for a third year next year (I know, I'm crazy).

To me the yearbook is fun and hopefully this one will be opened in thirty years or so and all of the dust covered memories will come rushing back. The impressions that Sweet Briar leaves on us will never be gone, because they are forever lasting. Each picture and each page of this book was designed to capture the impressions that seem so ordinary to us now, but will be so cherished in the future.

Take care and I sincerely hope that you will forever enjoy this book as much as I have enjoyed creating it for you.

With love,

-Sarah
